A peculiar little incident happened in Criminal Court yesterday afternoon which caused considerable merriment among all present except Judge White, who grew a trifle angry over the occurrence. The case was that of Mary Freko vs. John Schmitt for aggravated assault and battery. When the case was called Emmet Cotton, Esq., representing the defense, took a seat at the counsel table, in company with a young

Freko, the prosecutor, told the story of the assault, how the defendant had struck her on the head with a brick, and she exhibited the scar to the jury. When the witness was turned over to the defense for examination, Mr. Cotton asked her if she was sure the man sitting behind him was the one who struck her. The witness said she

Mr. Cotton—Now, are you positive? Witness—Yes, sir. I am. "John Schmitt," called out Mr. Cotton, and back of the court Mr. Cotton-Now, ain't that the man you Witness-Well, I declare to my gracious! that is the man.

The defense then tried to prove an alibi, and had witnesses who testified that on the night had witnesses who testined that on the high when the assault is alleged to have been com-mitted the defendant was in Pitt-burg, whereas the assault is alleged to have taken place on the Southside. In charging the jury, Judge White denounced the imposition practiced on the witness, and his charge was anything but favorable to the prisoner.

Colonel Archibald Blakely and Judge White had a lively little tit in Criminal Court yester-day. It was during the trial of a man named John Aubrey for selling liquor without license. Judge White made a remark that the evidence was overwhelming and he increased the de-fendant's bond to $1.000. Colonel Blakely took exceptions to the Judge's remarks and said that His Honor

HAD NO RIGHT to make them and allow them to be heard by the jury.

Judge White retorted that Mr. Blakely was Judge White retorted that Mr. Blakely was the only attorney at the Allegheny county bar who would requent the actions of the bench.

Colonel Blakely, in addressing the jury, stated that they were the judges of the law and the fact.

Judge White interrupted to say that the jury werenot the judges of the law. The bench was the proper place from which the law should be taken. When charging the jury the Judge recited to them a little story wherein a certain jury did not take the law from the Court, and the Judge saiting at the time thereupon fined the jurors and committed them to jail. The jury returned a verdict of guilty against Aubrey.

FIGHTING AN ESCHEAT. A Jury Trial on a Will Agreed to by the Beneficiaries. A motion was made in the Orphans' Court yesterday to have an issue certified to the Common Pleas Court for a jury trial in the matter of the estate of Mrs. Mary McD. Hazlett, Mrs. Haziett left an estate valued at from $50,000 to $60,000. She had been declared a lunatic a per of years before her death, and Georg Murdy appointed a committee to take charge of her.

As her death a will was filed leaving all her estate to Murdy. The Register refused to admit the will to probate, as it had been made after she had become a funatic and was in care of Murdy. The Register was sustained by the Const.

Court.

Afterward another will, made by Mrs. Haz-lett prior to the one leaving the estate to Murdy, was filed. This gave her possessions to her deceased husband's relatives, she having none of her own. Though this was also made while she was a lunatic, it was admitted to probate on the grounds that it had been made during a lucid interval, and made a reasonable disposition of her property.

After this disposition of the Register, C. F.
McKenns, Esq., obtained authority from the Auditor General of the State, and commenced Auditor General of the State, and commenced proceedings to escheat the estate to the Government. In order to do this he has first to have declared void the will leaving the property to Mr. Hazlett's relatives. It was in this case that the move was made by the beneficiaries under the will to have the case taken into the Common Pleas Court for a jury trial.

A Comfertable Share of an Estate Awaits Hugh Warden.

The will of Mrs. Eliza Warden was filed yes-terday for probate. Mrs. Warden bequeathed her house and lot, at No. 14 Townsend street, and her old Irish eight-day clock to her cousin, George Glass. To her friend, John H. Taylor, she gave her books and bookcase.

To Messrs. Glass and Taylor and Mrs. Fanny To Messrs. Glass and Taylor and Mrs. Fanny Feely she gave her nousehold effects, etc., to be divided equally. To Mrs. Fanny Feely and Hugh Warden she gave the balance of her estate. Warden is the son of her late husband and, she states, was last heard of in San Francisco. If he does not claim his share within two years it is to go to Mrs. Feely. George Glass and John H. Taylor were appointed executors. Mr. Glass, having died recently, the letters testamentary were issued to Mr. Taylor.

MR. PENDLETON DEAD.

A Distinguished Statesman, the Late Minister to Germany,

PASSES AWAY AT BRUSSELS.

The Originator of the Ohio Idea and an Earnest Advocate of

THE PRESENT CIVIL SERVICE LAW.

A Conspicuous Figure in National Political History for Many Years,

Hon. George H. Pendleton, ex-Minister to Germany, died in Berlin Sunday night. A sketch of his career in State and national polities is appended.

BRUSSELS, November 25 .- Hon. George H. Pendleton, late United States Minister at Berlin, died in this city last night. A brief biographical sketch is given below:

George Hunt Pendleton was born in Cincin nati July 19, 1825. He came of Whig and Federalist stock, his grandfather having been Major Nathaniel Pendleton, Adjutant General, aid and the most trusted friend of General Nathaniel Greene, and afterward United States Judge in Georgia; and his father, Nathaniel Greene Pendleton, a Whig leader in Ancinnati, a Representative in Congress during Harrison's administration, and a devoted follower of Henry Clay. "Gentleman George," as the present subject has long been familiarly called, received his education at the Wood-ward High School and Cincinnati College, and in 1844 went to Europe, where, after some time spent in study at Heidelberg, he traveled for three years, and became acquainted with languages, manners and men in all the chief capitals.

languages, manners and men in all the chief capitals.

Returning home, he began the practice of the law in partnership with George E. Pugh, afterward United States Senator. At the same time he allied himself with the Democratic party, and made himself a factor in Ohio politics. In 1858 he was elected to the State Senate. In 1854 he ran for Congress, and was beaten, but two years later was elected, and three times thereafter was returned, serving until 1856. In the campaign of 1860 he supported Douglas for President.

HIS CAREER IN CONGRESS.

He was prominently spoken of for Speaker of the House, but Republican ascendency pre-vented success in that direction. He was appointed upon the Committee of Ways and Means, having previously served on the Judi-Means, having previously served on the Judi-ciary and Military Committees. He urged the payment of Government bonds in greenbacks, thus originating the notorious "Ohio Idea" of inflation. In 1884 he was prominently men-tioned as a Presidental candidate, but the ma-jority of the delegates being in favor of a mili-tary man, General George B. McClellan was nominated as the Democratic candidate for President, with Mr. Pendleton as candidate for the Vice Presidency. The issue of the election was adverse, only Delaware, New Jersey and Keutucky casting their votes for McClellan and Pendleton.

Pendleton.

In 1866 Mr. Pendleton again received the nomination of his party for Congress, but, although he ran ahead of his ticket, he was defeated. At the Democratic National Convention, held in New York in 1868, his name stood first among the Presidental candidates, and the Ohio delegation had been instructed to vote for him, but after a protracted balloting his name was withdrawn and Horatio Seymour made the nomines of the party.

AS A CIVIL SERVICE REFORMER. In 1871 he was President of the convention in which the Democracy of Ohio made the famous new departure platform and declared their acquiescence in the new amendments to the new departure piacoria acquiescence in the new amendments to the Constitution. His term of service as a United States Senator began on the 4th of March, 1867, as the successor of Stanley Matthews.

Mr. Pendleton's chief political reputation of late years has rested upon his advocacy of the civil service reform bill, which he originated, and which owes its passage mainly to his labors and sagacity. On account of his prominence in this matter, but in spite of the cumity which his honesty created, he was honored with the appointment to the German mission by President Clevelaud. Mr. Pendleton was a graceful speaker, a versatile scholar, and a polished man of the world. He was married in 1848 to Miss Alice Key, daughter of the author of "The Star Spangled Banner" and niece of ex-Chief Justice Roger B. Taney. They had a son and two daughters. They had a handsome mansion in Cincinnati, a "cottage" at Newport, and a fine house in Washington, where they ranked among the most exclusive and aristocratic of families.
